FIRM OVERVIEW:

Ware, Jackson, Lee & Chambers serves clients with serious litigation needs. The firm represents individuals and organizations involved in disputes which are headed toward trial or arbitration. Our exclusive focus on adversarial proceedings has afforded us extensive experience trying significant cases – experience which is useful when important cases can be settled, essential when they must be tried.

Ware, Jackson handles all types of commercial litigation at trial and on appeal for both plaintiffs and defendants. The majority of the firm's partners are board-certified trial or appellate specialists. The firm practices in state and federal court and is comfortable managing lawsuits from their beginning or parachuting into matters on the eve of trial. Because we recognize that litigation costs are a business issue, we are receptive to many innovative fee structures.

INDUSTRIES REPRESENTED:

Agriculture and Ranching, Chemical, Construction, Insurance, Manufacturing, Mineral Interest Ownership, Oil and Gas, Retail, Telecommunication, Transportation, Waste Management

SELECTED PRACTICE AREAS:*COMMERCIAL LITIGATION

The firm has tried a broad variety of commercial cases, including breach of contract, fraud, disputes over business structure, professional malpractice, and many other types of lawsuits, some of which are discussed below. Much of our experience is with very complicated litigation involving numerous parties, extensive discovery, and voluminous document management. Not every law firm has the mix of legal talent and actual trial experience to handle these kind of cases.

CONSTRUCTION

When significant construction projects go south, they can create tremendously complex litigation problems. Ware, Jackson has the lawyers, the support staff, and the technology to transform the reams of documents and hours of testimony produced by a construction case into a coherent narrative which can be understood by jurors, judges or arbitrators. Whether we handle the matter alone, in conjunction with in-house counsel, or as partners with other outside counsel, we welcome the opportunity to assist with construction disputes.

EMPLOYMENT

Ware, Jackson has handled employment claims of highly compensated employees and management personnel. When litigation involves rogue employees at the top of the pyramid, it is no longer about damages alone – competitive concerns and confidentiality issues may be paramount. We are prepared to undertake employment litigation assignments of both ordinary and extraordinary dimensions.

ENVIRONMENTAL

The firm represents both defendants and plaintiffs in environmental and toxic tort cases involving personal injury or property damage. Whether it is trying a large oil spill and sub-surface water pollution case or defending a blow-out problem for a producer, we are familiar with the opportunities and challenges confronting both those who would bring environmental claims and those who must defend against them.

INSURANCE

Ware, Jackson represents both carriers and policyholders in insurance matters. The firm has tried and arbitrated cases involving the scope of insurance coverage and insurance placement. We have also handled many other types of insurance disputes. The firm also provides coverage opinions to carriers, policyholders, and litigants.

OIL AND GAS

Practicing in Texas, the firm has experience in a broad range of oil and gas cases. Ware, Jackson represents both operators and mineral interest owners in a variety of oilfield claims. The firm's experience extends from cases involving pipeline companies embroiled in commercial disputes to producers in down-hole damage litigation. We have also handled disputes involving complicated insurance and indemnity issues, advanced production technology, and unusual questions concerning standard energy industry documents such as the Joint Operating Agreement.

PERSONAL INJURY DEFENSE

The senior partners in the firm learned to practice law when the personal injury field was the major source of trial litigation. Collectively, they have tried and appealed many, many personal injury cases for both defendants and injured claimants. The days when injury cases were predominant at the courthouse seem to be long gone, but the breadth of Ware, Jackson's experience in the area means that the firm is ready to defend against the most significant injury claims that its clients could face.

PRODUCTS LIABILITY

In this area, as in others, Ware, Jackson lawyers have tried cases both for the defendant and for the plaintiff. This experience on both sides of the product liability docket provides the firm's lawyers with a comprehensive understanding of how this type of litigation works and where pressure points can be found in these cases.

PROBATE, PERSONAL INJURY, DEFAMATION

Even corporate counsel have personal legal problems and, perhaps more importantly, may be consulted for personal legal help by management or staff. Ware, Jackson has years of experience handling lawsuits involving the claims of individuals, and this type of practice remains part of the firm's business portfolio.
